Network for Justice: Launch of new website and online demonstration

The Network for Justice is free to join for anyone interested in linking in and learning from the justice community. We also offer support to existing networks and community support initiatives by providing additional resources to promote and showcase their work and facilitating the growth and development of these initiatives within the broader justice community. The Network is supported by the Access to Justice Foundation (AJTF); the Foundation is an independent fundraising and grant making charity focused on supporting the free legal advice sector.

The website will provide a new public access space where information, resources, and opportunities can be accessed without the need to login to a member's area. There is a huge increase in filtering, sorting, and searching functionality to help get you to the most relevant resources quickly.

You will still be able to add your own events, training, vacancies and news items to the new platform, and we will continue to administrate and approve all contributions.

In addition to making our content more accessible we are introducing two membership options which will enable our community to engage with the Network in the ways that work best for them; the Justice Community and Justice Network.

Date: Thursday 2nd November

Time: 12:30-1:30pm

Venue: Online

Registration: For more information about Network for Justice, email marthadelaroch@atjf.org.uk

CLCE/Central Law CIC and the Access to Justice Foundation Pilot Scheme: Launch

From 7 November 2022 (Pro Bono Week), funded by the Access to Justice to Justice Foundation, our volunteers, all of whom have been trained by our lawyers, as well as our lawyers, will be present at Chelmsford County & Family Court, Chelmsford Magistrates

Court, Southend Combined Court, Basildon County and Magistrates Courts and Colchester Magistrates and Family Court. This is also thanks to the kind assistance of HMCTS.

Volunteers for this scheme are drawn from current post graduate students completing Law School and lawyers qualified in foreign jurisdictions. They will be overseen, in person and by remote, by our lawyers and will have access to them via a direct link, so that Court users can receive legal advice (as compared to mere assistance) when required.

Until all our volunteers are in place, our own lawyers will be covering as many of the Courts as we can, in a private room, so that Court users receive the support they need.

Date: Monday 7th November

Time: Pilot Scheme ends on 31st March 2022

Venue: Chelmsford County & Family Court, Chelmsford Magistrates Court, Southend Combined Court, Basildon County and Magistrates Courts and Colchester Magistrates and Family Court. - Hybrid

Registration: More information can be found here: <https://probonoweek.org.uk/event/clce-central-law-cic-and-the-access-to-justice-foundation-pilot-scheme-launch>

The Climate Crisis is Real – how junior lawyers can get involved in tackling the climate crisis?: Clyde & Co

2022 has seen record breaking temperatures and unprecedented climate hazards emerge globally, which is a stark reminder that the climate crisis is very much real and well underway. It is therefore more important than ever that every professional is able to pull their weight in tackling this crisis, none more so than the next generation of lawyers and professionals in the legal sector who have invaluable skills, resources, and unlocked potential at their disposal. But how can junior lawyers get involved in pro bono climate change work, particularly those who have no idea where to start?

Clyde & Co invite you to attend our virtual panel event for Pro Bono Week, which will discuss how junior lawyers can get involved in tackling the climate crisis.

We are delighted to have the following panellists who will lead this discussion:

Josh Hopkins (Chair) – Trainee Solicitor at Clyde & Co / Legal Secondee at The Chancery Lane Project

Zaneta Sedilekova – Associate at Clyde & Co

Sarah Hill-Smith – Associate at Clyde & Co

Alasdair Cameron – Climate Change Policy Adviser at The Law Society

The Future of Barristers – overcoming present obstacles: Manchester University Law Society

It is our pleasure to invite you to 'The Future of Barristers – overcoming present obstacles' event, organised in collaboration with the Justice Hub. This event is a follow up to the Statement issued by the Pro Bono Society, Manchester University Law Society and the Bar and Advocacy Society earlier in this academic year.

The topics covered by the presentations of our speakers include the impact of Dominic Raab's comments regarding barristers and the strikes on practising barristers. Our panellists will also discuss in more detail about their practice areas and a typical day in their lives, as well as their views on the future of the profession. There will be Q&A opportunities throughout the event after each speaker, as well as a networking session at the end.

The schedule will be as follows:

17:00 – Welcome and Introductions

17:05 – Ciara Bartlam – practising barrister at Garden North Chambers with an area of expertise in inquests & public inquiries, and Public Law, specialised in representing bereaved families with passed loved ones.

17:20 – Lily Lewis – practising barrister at Garden North Chambers with an area of expertise in civil actions against the police & public authorities, housing & homelessness, immigration and asylum, inquests & public inquiries and Public law.

17:35 – Rosalind Burgin – practising barrister at Garden North Chambers with an area of expertise in criminal defence & appeals, judicial review, discrimination law and housing & homelessness.

17:55 – General Q&A

18:10 – Networking session

Alcoholic and non-alcoholic options will be available at the event, so please feel free to come and join us after a lecture or seminar!

Launch of the new Liverpool John Moores University School of Law Legal Advice Centre

This event celebrates the opening of the Liverpool John Moores University School of Law's Legal Advice Centre in its new premises at 15-19 Hardman Street.

The new location for this pro bono service means that we can now advise much larger numbers of staff, students and members of the public. It is a space for the local community to get help accessing justice, and in which we use innovative methods for teaching our law students and conducting research.

Speakers

Dr Tim Nichol, Pro Vice Chancellor, Faculty of Business & Law;
Rachel Stalker, Clinical Legal Education Programme Leader

Date: Monday 7th November

Time: 6:00pm-8:00pm

Venue: 15-19 Hardman Street, Liverpool, L1 9AS – in person only

Pro Bono Week Events 2022: Cayman Islands Legal Assistance Clinic

The Cayman Islands is taking part in Pro Bono Week with events and communications to showcase the new Cayman Islands Legal Assistance Clinic, and to encourage law students and attorneys to volunteer.

The Clinic represents a cooperative initiative between the Department of Legal Aid, the Cayman Islands Legal Practitioners Association and the Truman Bodden Law School under the direction of Chief Justice Anthony Smellie. The mandate of the clinic is to provide greater access to justice for eligible members of the community through the provision of free (pro bono) legal advice and assistance as a complement to the provision of legal services by the local bar and the formal legal aid system. Students at the Truman Bodden Law School have the opportunity to take part in hands-on legal work for the benefit of the wider community.

If you are a Cayman attorney and interested in taking part in Pro Bono Week please contact the Facilitators of the Clinic, Darlene Oko Darlene.Oko@judicial.ky and Andrew Perkins Andrew.Perkins@gov.ky

Time: Throughout the week

Stepping up for Pro Bono in Wales: Pro Bono Committee for Wales

The newly formed Pro Bono Committee for Wales, Legal News Wales and LawWorks Cymru are collaborating to host the first in-person Pro Bono Week event for Wales in some years, focused on bringing the free legal advice sector, legal professionals and legal practices together.

This is a great chance to get to know what's going on in the local legal advice area and to ask those already volunteering and leading Pro Bono activity what it's really like and why and how solicitors, CILEx lawyers and barristers should participate.

Our panel discussion with a diverse range of speakers will explore:

What 'Pro Bono' looks like post pandemic– what are the opportunities for practitioners in and from Wales and how can you fit these into your busy professional lives

The business case for Pro Bono: The real-time benefits and value for you, your organisation and, importantly, for local communities in Wales

Speakers

- Dr Ola Olusanya, Veterans Legal Link & Director of Learning and Teaching (Department of Law and Criminology) at Aberystwyth University
- Jonathan Rhys Williams, Solicitor at Watkins & Gunn & volunteer at Cardiff Lawyers Care
- Hussein Said, Consultant, Asylum Justice
- Samuel Bass, Associate Solicitor at Newfields & volunteer at Asylum Justice
- David White, Clinic Support & Development Officer (Wales) at LawWorks Cymru
- Panel chaired by Emma Waddingham, Editor, Legal News Wales.

Networking

Our panel discussion will be followed by informal networking and drinks, with the chance to ask further questions and legal professionals, law clinics, free legal advice centres and charities. We will also provide signposting to the Pro Bono opportunities and network in Wales.

Date: Tuesday 8th November

Time: 5:30pm-7:30pm

Venue: The Law Society Wales Office – in person only

Public Interest Litigation on the Intersections between Human Rights and Climate Justice: PILS Project

Pro bono lawyers have a vital role to play in climate justice cases, particularly where those cases impact marginalised communities whose access to justice is impaired or restricted. This webinar will look at the developing area of rights-based climate litigation and the different ways in which human rights intersect with climate justice.

We will hear from Paul Clark, one of the barristers acting for the Portuguese youth-applicants in their European Court of Human Rights claim against 33 countries in connection with emissions reductions. Sinéad Magner will discuss the gendered impact of the climate crisis and the importance of addressing gender equality as part and parcel of actions to mitigate against climate change. Laura Neal of Friends of the Earth NI will provide valuable insight into the work of inhouse lawyers within environmental NGOs, who are at the cutting edge of driving strategic litigation in this field.

This event, celebrating UK Pro Bono Week 2022, is hosted by The Public Interest Litigation Support (PILS) Project. PILS is a Belfast-based organisation which provides legal and financial support to NGOs and legal professionals in Northern Ireland to help build public interest litigation, thereby advancing human rights and equality for the benefit of society as a whole.

Speakers:

Laura Neal, Friends of the Earth;
Paul Clark, Garden Court Chambers;
Sinéad Magner, WEDO;
Hilary Perry and Kate Barry (facilitators), The PILS Project

How to run a Legal Health Check for Non-Profits and Social Enterprises: Trust Law with Law Works

LawWorks and TrustLaw are co-hosting a pro bono legal workshop and networking for non-governmental organisations, social enterprises and charities that are driving social change worldwide. This is a unique event where organisations will have the opportunity to learn how to run a legal health check of their organisation. This will cover a broad spectrum of legal topics: from setting up a new legal entity and understanding your obligations towards employees, to protecting your ideas and branding. Ensuring that your organisation is “healthy” will save time and resources in the future – helping you to streamline operations and maximise funding opportunities. The session will also provide information on the variety of pro bono legal assistance available through TrustLaw and LawWorks.

Birmingham Law Society Pro Bono Committee with the Environmental Law Foundation: The Climate Crisis Is Real – What Can Lawyers Do To Help?

For Pro Bono Week 2022, the Birmingham Law Society Pro Bono Committee invites our legal community to an important and insightful evening event. This event is kindly hosted by Gowling WLG.

This year's event will focus on climate change and environmental issues, exploring the real impact our pro bono contribution can have in supporting communities and people dealing with environmental threat. The Committee is delighted to host a line-up of fantastic speakers to share their experience and ideas for this event.

So many of us are deeply concerned by the environmental challenges we are all facing and struggle to know how to make a difference. This evening event will explore how lawyers, both as businesses and as individuals, can use our legal skills, commercial experience and influence to make a genuine contribution. We hope this will be a fascinating and eye-opening evening for firms, chambers and practitioners throughout the Midlands who are keen to discover how pro bono, perhaps as part of a wider responsible business strategy, can be part of this.

Speakers:

- The Environmental Law Foundation (ELF)
- Fiona Nicholls, Head of Sustainability and Assurance, Gowling WLG
- Lee McBride, Partner and Head of Environmental Team, Ladders Solicitors
- Nina Pindham, Barrister specialising in Planning and Environmental, No5 Barristers' Chambers

Weil, Gotshal & Manges with Legal Response International: Levelling up climate negotiations

Representatives from Legal Response International (LRI) will be tuning in live from COP27 in Sharm el-Sheikh, to explore how pro bono lawyers can support negotiators from low-income countries during UN Climate Change Conventions. This is an in-person event with Zoom dial-in available and will be attended by lawyers and professionals from other law firms.

Speakers:

- Christoph Schwarte, Director, Legal Response International
- TBC negotiator
- Cami Jetzer, Associate
- Isobel Rudd, Trainee Associate
- Will Hooker, Partner, Pallas Partners LLP
- William Ferris, Trainee, Clyde & Co

Legal Response International (LRI) is a charity that provides free legal assistance to negotiators from low-income and climate vulnerable countries in connection with the international climate negotiations under the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change. The international negotiations under the UN Climate Change Conventions are among the most complex multilateral law and policy-making processes ever. LRI seeks to create a level playing field between actors in these discussions by providing poorer, more climate-vulnerable countries with pro bono legal experts. During COP26, Weil colleagues in DC and London worked with LRI to provide real-time legal analysis to negotiators from low-income nations.

Pro Bono Week 2022 is taking place 7-11 November and recognises the incredible contribution of lawyers across the country who use their specialist skills through the provision of free legal advice. Since 2015, the London office has performed almost 100,000 pro bono hours which is testament to our commitment and dedication to Our Finest Hours.

COP27 is taking place in Sharm el-Sheikh in November and will mark the 30th anniversary of the adoption of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC). The conference will bring together world leaders, politicians, policy makers, lawyers, scientists and ecologists from UN member states.

Date: Thursday 10th November
Time: 12:00pm - 1:00pm
Venue: Weil, Gotshal & Manges – hybrid event

Finding your Pro Bono Projects: The Law Society of England and Wales

Panel event and Q&A for in house organisations

To mark Pro Bono week, the Law Society is holding this virtual event to explore how in house legal teams can get involved with pro bono projects. Whatever the size or nature of the business, whether in the public or private sector, in-house legal teams in England and Wales have a long history of providing free legal services for not-for-profit charitable organisations and individuals. In order to effectively implement a pro bono programme, we believe it is beneficial to seek support and guidance from those who are both in similar stages of their pro bono journeys, and from those who are more established. This event has been designed to hear from an array of experiences, and to discuss how to overcome those potential barriers that could hinder the implementation of pro bono initiatives.

Date: Thursday 10th November
Time: 12:00pm - 1:30pm

Climate change - pro-bono action and the law - City, University of London

Dr Paul Stookes explores the City, University of London pro-bono work being carried on in conjunction with the Environmental Law Foundation (ELF), exploring how climate change commitments are being realised and put into effect.

The need for urgent action to reduce greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions has never been more real with the extreme summer heat and droughts being followed intense storms, flooding with loss of life and livelihoods. The link between man-made climate change and extreme weather events is now uncontroversial and most UK governments at a national and local level have set themselves ambitious targets to reduce the level of GHG emissions by 2030. However, it is not all clear that they are close to meeting the carbon reduction commitments.

The ELF pro-bono project 2022-23 builds upon earlier ground-breaking research from City, University of London to examine the efforts of public bodies in tackling climate change with a view to highlighting the need for further urgent action.

Join the online meeting and the pro-bono policy team to continue City, University of London's important climate emergency research work.

Pro Bono Week 2022: Rule of Law Event with Baroness Hale of Richmond and others

Following on from successful Rule of Law events in Pro Bono Week 2020 and Volunteers Week 2021, our Rule of Law event returns! We are very grateful to Gray's Inn for kindly hosting the in-person element of this Pro Bono Week event.

There can be few times in the modern history of the UK where the Rule of Law has remained at the forefront of public attention and discussion for such a sustained period – whether it is governmental “tinkering” with judicial review, the backlog in the court system, to some concerning narrative about lawyers practising in the immigration and criminal justice systems.

As important as that focus has been, it often leaves a hugely important question unanswered: where do we go from here? Lawyers almost universally see the Rule of Law as fundamental, but that seems some way off outside of the profession? If we are to protect the Rule of Law (and drive an environment where upholding the Rule of Law is seen as non-negotiable), the public at large need to feel the same way.

Having considered this question previously, the panel will return to give an update on the “state of the union” of the Rule of Law in the UK. From there, we will turn to continue our debate on what can be done to begin to deliver this. Can the law, and justice be rebranded? Can businesses be made to care and champion the Rule of Law? What, or who might get the public to value access to justice?

Chair: Catherine Baksi (Freelance Journalist)

Panellists are:

Baroness Hale of Richmond (former President of the UK Supreme Court),

Joshua Cameron (Managing Director, FTI Consulting)

Baroness Helena Kennedy QC (Director of the IBA Human Rights Institute)

Abiodun Michael Olatokun FRSA (Campaigner, academic and lawyer)

Date: Tuesday 15th November

Time: Panel starts 5.30pm until 7.00pm. (In person and on Zoom)
